RoHS Directive

Year 2020

What is the RoHS Directive

The Directive 2011/65/EU of the European Parliament and Council, known as RoHS II, took effect on January 3, 2013. It restricts the use of hazardous materials in the manufacture of various types of electronic and electrical equipment.

This directive replaced the former Directive 2002/95/EC without any modification to the allowed percentages of hazardous materials, but extended its scope according also to the delegated Directive 2015/863/EU adopted on March 31, 2015.

RoHS Compliance of Pizzato Elettrica products

With the definition of electrical and electronic equipment given by the directive, Pizzato Elettrica products belong to category 11, for which the compliance is mandatory from July 22, 2019.

The CE marking on a product attests its compliance with the Directive.

Pizzato Elettrica approves and shares the principles of the RoHS directive and its products conform to this directive since 2004.
